We are proud to announce that Trinity has today signed the Armed Forces Covenant — a public commitment to support the Armed Forces Community across the United Kingdom.

At Trinity, everything we do is built around one belief: that every person deserves a safe home, genuine support, and a real pathway forward. That belief applies equally to those who have served our country. Veterans, reservists, serving personnel and their families should never face disadvantage in accessing housing or support — and yet too often, they do.

By signing the Covenant today, we are making the following commitments to the Armed Forces Community:

Homes. We will ensure that veterans and military families have access to the safe, quality homes that Trinity provides — on equal terms with everyone we serve.

Employment. We will actively welcome applications from members of the Armed Forces Community, including offering placements and work experience opportunities within our organisation.

Training. Through the Trinity Pathway Academy, we will offer training places to veterans and military families, helping to build confidence, skills and long-term independence.

Community engagement. We will engage with local cadet groups, recognising the value of the cadet movement and its contribution to young people and communities across Wales.

Signposting. We will ensure that Armed Forces Community members who come into contact with Trinity are connected to the wider support and services available to them.

Amanda Milliner, Chief Executive Officer, signed the Covenant on behalf of on 14th April 2026.
